RECONSTRUCTION.

Address of the Faneuil Hall Committee on Negro Suffrage.

A CONVINCING DOCUMENT.

The Proclamation Subject under Review. Its Principles Indorsed, but Its Failure Proclaimed.

The recent public demonstration in favor of negro suffrage, held in Faneuil Hall, in connection with the principles therein discussed for the consideration of the people. That meeting has since appointed a committee to prepare and publish an address to the country. As it is a very important document, and one which will be widely read, we publish it entire, and commend it to the careful perusal of every reader:

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES:

Let us now, fellow-citizens, turn our attention to ourselves and our duties. Having successfully closed the building of the Union, the question is one of military responsibility, it is one of political responsibility, it is one of public safety and the public faith required.

First. The principle must be put beyond question that the United States will not allow any claim upon the allegiance of every citizen, which has been forfeited by rebellion, and by his obligations to the laws of the Republic, and to the Constitution and laws of any State in the Union.

Second. The public faith is pledged to every person of color in the rebel States, to secure to him the fruits of his labor, and the right to the full protection of the laws. Having conferred upon him the boon of freedom, it is our duty to see that he is not robbed of it by violence, fraud or oppression.

Third. The system of slavery must be abolished, and the right of suffrage in the rebel States, to the loyal people, must be secured, before the States can be restored to their practical relations with the Union. Assuming to be the only competent judges of political practice, has made their system of political power to the rebel States, to the exclusion of the free States. If the free States, as they now have the power, shall not impose, as the price of their restoration to political power, the right of suffrage to the loyal people of the rebel States, they will be guilty of the most criminal recklessness of the future welfare of the country.

Fourth. The rebel States must be reconstructed, and their governments must be established, with the consent of the loyal people, upon the basis of universal suffrage. The reconstruction of the rebel States, by the President, upon the basis of the white race alone, is a practical failure. It is a failure, because it is not just. It is a failure, because it is not safe. It is a failure, because it is not practicable. It is not just, because it is a violation of the principles of the Declaration of Independence, and of the Constitution of the United States, which declare that all governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, and that all men are entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It is not safe, because it is not just. It is not practicable, because it is not safe. It is not practicable, because it is not just. It is not practicable, because it is not safe. It is not practicable, because it is not just. It is not practicable, because it is not safe.

The Views of a Life-long Democrat on Recent Events.

An Honest Conversion.

[Correspondence of the Philadelphia Press.]

Montclair, N. J., July 17, 1865.

I have come down to this part of New Jersey with the intention of casting my vote with the Democratic party, and supporting for Governor a man to whom I am personally unknown. I have no other reason for this course than that I believe it to be the only one which will secure the public safety and the public faith.

Before the election of Governor Parsons, I was a Democrat of the Douglas school. I had voted with that party for many years, and had always been a firm believer in the principles of the Democratic party. I had been taught to believe that the Democratic party was the party of the Constitution, and that the Republican party was the party of fanaticism. I had been taught to believe that the Democratic party was the party of the Constitution, and that the Republican party was the party of fanaticism. Trial of the Colemanite Tyrant—He Hanged—Judge Hall Committing Suicide—Other Interesting Items—A Kill-a-Rebel Convention—Radical Railroad.

[Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.]

St. Louis, July 15, 1865.

The Coleman trial was concluded on the 5th, and the following case found. The result, however, was not announced until Friday last, when the decision and sentence having been suppressed by Maj. Gen. Rosecrans, they were published in the evening papers. The defendant, Chas. D. Coleman, late Provost Marshal under the Enrollment act for the district of Howard, was a citizen of the county of the city, was arraigned and held on six charges, upon which there were fifteen specifications. The charges were of murder, which he was defended by two of the ablest lawyers at our bar, he was found guilty of the charges and specifications, and sentenced to death. The charges upon which he was found guilty are

First. Attempting to procure a conspiracy for the purpose of murdering Union citizens, and the Republican party in Howard county, Missouri.

Second. Attempting to procure a conspiracy for the purpose of murdering Union citizens, and the Republican party in Howard county, Missouri.

Third. Attempting to procure a conspiracy for the purpose of murdering Union citizens, and the Republican party in Howard county, Missouri.

Fourth. Attempting to procure a conspiracy for the purpose of murdering Union citizens, and the Republican party in Howard county, Missouri.

Fifth. Attempting to procure a conspiracy for the purpose of murdering Union citizens, and the Republican party in Howard county, Missouri.

Sixth. Attempting to procure a conspiracy for the purpose of murdering Union citizens, and the Republican party in Howard county, Missouri.

THE FAR WEST RAILWAY.

It is now proposed to apply the same principle to the Pacific railroad as that which is being carried across the river. Trains will be run from Jefferson City to Wilkinsburg, a distance of about 25 miles, and there connect with the Pacific road.

The first mentioned road is completed to the bridge, and the bridge is now being built. The road is also completed from Wilkinsburg to Jefferson City, and the bridge is now being built. The road is also completed from Wilkinsburg to Jefferson City, and the bridge is now being built.
